(b) the number of flights the two sides have agreed to fly on various sectors;

(c) whether it is a fact that many foreign airlines from South-East Asian countries have shown interest to cover various destinations in India; and

(d) if so, the details thereof?

THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF CIVIL AVIATION (SHRI PRAFUL PATEL): (a) to (d) Designated airlines of member countries of Association of South-East Asian Nations (ASEAN), including Singapore and Thailand, have been offered up to a daily service to each of four metro cities of New Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai and Kolkata subject to reciprocal rights for the Indian side. They have also been offered unlimited number of flights to 18 other tourist gateways in India subject to reciprocal rights being granted to the Indian side. Airlines designated by Singapore and Malayasia can also operate agreed number of services of Bangalore and Hyderabad and airlines of Thailand to Bangalore. Actual operations are, however, matters of commercial judgement of the airlines concerned.
